

AGENTS WANT TO HEAR HYDE'S SIDE EQUITABLE FIGHT

Young Man Wins Their Support by Vigorous Reply to Demand that He Get Out—"I Will Not Resign and Disgrace My Father's Memory."

James H. Hyde this afternoon declined the invitation of the general agents of the Equitable Society, who politely requested him to resign this morning, to address them at the Hotel Savoy. Mr. Hyde declined the invitation on the ground that he was too busily engaged in other matters to go uptown and make a speech.

"He was very much pleased at the invitation," said Chairman Bows, of the Invitation Committee, "and said he would love to be with us, but that he would prepare a statement covering all the matters at issue, which statement will be in our hands to-morrow. Under the circumstances it is not necessary that he should address us."

There was a decided change of sentiment among the general agents of the Equitable to-day, when the Committee of Five, who called on Mr. Hyde and read him the request of the agents that he voluntarily resign, returned to the Hotel Savoy and reported the answer Mr. Hyde had made. At the conclusion of the meeting between Mr. Hyde and the committee this morning Mr. Hyde gave out what purported to be a stenographic report of the twelve minutes of talk. Later the agents gave out a more complete account of what Mr. Bows had said, claiming that the Hyde report had been out. The account given out by Mr. Hyde is as follows:

Mr. Bows as Chairman said: "I am charged, sir, with the somewhat disagreeable task, the bearing to you of a request from the convention of managers and agents assembled at the Hotel Savoy, to ask that you voluntarily resign your position as Vice-President of the Equitable."

"Following is the request from the convention:

"We, the general agents and managers of the Equitable, assembled in convention from all parts of the United States and Canada, are personally and through our agents in the closest touch with the public. Knowing the deep-seated convictions of our policyholders, and deeply deploring the necessity for our action, we sincerely and earnestly appeal to you on behalf of the Equitable, to the creation and upbuilding of which your honored father devoted his life, and for the sake of its policyholders and agents, to set aside all considerations of personal interests and now voluntarily retire from the Vice-Presidency of this Society."

Mr. Hyde replied: "In the first place I want to say that I have no intention of resigning from the vice-presidency of the Equitable."

"Such a course I would consider cowardly and disgraceful to the memory of my father. In the second place, it is evident from your extraordinary request and from the report of the proceedings at your meeting that you have not the remotest conception of the safe and sane controversy or of the motives behind the selfish struggle for the control of the society."

"I think, however, that you are entitled to know something of the real facts on which my attitude is based, and I will therefore write you to-morrow in response to the request contained in this remarkable communication."

"Permit me, however, to remark that your request might with far more justice and propriety have been made to those who, having no interest in the Society, precipitated this unfortunate controversy and are keeping the agitation alive to secure their own selfish purposes."

"You will hear further from me to-morrow. Of course, you gentlemen know that the questions at issue are now in the hands of the Department of Insurance and Mr. Frick's committee, who, I think, will agree with me, are the proper ones to judge. It is but fair to wait their report. I enjoy you again that the best way to bring about a satisfactory conclusion is for you men to remain loyal to the Equitable—not to the faction—and to await the report of the Investigating Committee."

"On reflection, I think you will see your manifest impropriety in endeavoring to judge this matter in a few hours and thus hurriedly anticipate what is now the subject of exhaustive examination by the authorities mentioned."

has and what vividly blue eyes. I have got into the habit of examining the color of every man's eyes."

"But may be it was worth while waiting, now that we have our jury," she said with quivering animation.

Satisfied with Jurors.

"How do you like it—are you satisfied with the men?" I queried.

"Perfectly! I have never seen so honest or sincere-looking a lot of jurors. I like this much better than my other juries, though I shouldn't say it. There is not one of them that does not please me, and I feel I can trust myself to their judgment without a quail."

"I think they are a very kindly looking lot of men."

I agreed with her, she seemed so enthusiastic in her admiration of the twelve peers who will judge her.

"As the talesmen are on the witness stand, what are the things that influence you most strongly in formulating your opinion of them?" I ventured.

"Is it the voice, its tone and modulation; the eyes, frank, or shifting; the turn of the mouth and the line about it; the brow; the shape of the head, or the general expression that seems to you the most striking indications of character? You have said how the eyes influence you, but that was more the expression of soul than character you judged."

"Their manner of answering the questions put to them has more meaning for me than anything else. If they seem straightforward, speaking frankly without reservation, my heart goes out to them and I feel a readiness to place my fate in their hands. Eyes mean a lot to me, too. And you may think it strange, but hands seem to tell me a great deal. Strong, finely kept, well-shaped hands express much. Then I get an impression from the way a man carries himself. An erect bearing and quick, firm step makes you feel secure in a man's resolution. It is hard to read the faces of men who have heavy-lidded eyes, however, but I fear the angle as to look into their eyes. But my jury impresses me very favorably."

"Of course you would rather have a jury of men to decide your fate than a jury of women?" I interposed.

Would Object to Women Jurors.

MORGAN LOST $600,000, HIS WIFE DECLARES

Half of It Was Father's Estate Funds, She Tells the Court.

HE KNEW OTHER WOMEN

Wife of Former Sugar Trust Treasurer Accused of Making Damaging Admissions.

(Special to The Evening World.)

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., April 20.—Smiling serenely and carrying her head high, Mrs. Edith Morgan took the witness stand in the Supreme Court to-day and continued her testimony in her suit for a separation against her husband, Dr. Percy Morgan, formerly assistant treasurer of the Sugar Trust, and an expert automobilist.

The case is being tried before Justice Keogh.

"Mr. Morgan told me," said the witness, "that he had lost $600,000 since his marriage to me. Three hundred thousand dollars represented his own money, and the balance represented part of his father's estate."

"Did Morgan make any statement about his relations with other women?"

"Yes, he did," she replied. "He was taking lunch with my daughter Edith, my daughter called my attention to the fact that Mr. Morgan was eating lunch with another woman right behind us. He came over and spoke to us, and then went back and finished his lunch with the woman."

She Paid the Bills.

"Do you remember the occasion when Mr. Morgan came to the Jay house with a pistol?"

"Yes, I do," she replied. "Mr. Morgan called and sent three messengers to me asking me to see him, and I declined. Finally I did see him."

"She was not allowed to tell what occurred," Mrs. Morgan testified that she had seen her husband with other women, even in the Episcopal church, which was sent to Mr. Morgan in Pennsylvania, home returned to her at Harrison home and she had to settle the accounts.

Lawyer Wellman then took up the cross-examination of Mrs. Morgan.

"Now, you heard your father testify that Mr. Morgan had lost $257,000, which is right?"

"That is what he told me," she replied. "I never saw the Thomas M. Hivane, your father's partner, had gone over Mr. Morgan's father's estate and said that he had lost $257,000, but on the other hand a gain of $300,000."

"No, sir."

"Were you willing to make this charge of dishonesty against your husband without investigating it?"

"Did you want to hurt him in the eyes of the public?"

"No. My father investigated the matter."
